..:: MacHacking.net ::..

Article from MacHacking.net Knowledge Base: http://kb.machacking.net

****
Title: The Modern Phreakers Guide to Busy Boxing
Author: datachild
****

Table Of Contents

I. Introduction
II. Parts
III. Construction
IV. How To Use
VII. Greets

Introduction://

Muahaha I'M BACK!! For the second installment on this series I will teach all you little Phreakers out there how to busy box. Busy boxing can be a bitch to the phones owner. What this little monkey does is makes the phone line busy ALL the time until someone unplugs it. And lucky for you people, its extremely easy to make >;D

Parts://

1. A phone line (not attached to anything)
2. Tape
3. Wire cutters
4. Wire strippers

Construction://

Construction is fairly simple. Cut the wire in half and skin it back about 3 inches so you have the four inner wires showing. Cut the two outer wires so you only have the two middle ones left. Now skin those wires so you have the wire fully exposed and twist the exposed wires together good. Now tape the twisted wires up so it wont move AT ALL. You should have the male plug (thing that you stick into the wall jack) and then the area that you taped. If not you did it wrong and use the other half of the wire you cut.

How To Use://

Unfortunately this is nothing but an annoyance tool, so it's limited to its uses.

Go outside to the terminal and plug it in at the jack (most modern ones have jacks to plug into, if not then go back and read my beige boxing tutorial and attach alligator clips) and just leave it. This will cause the victim... i mean friend that your playing a joke on ;) alot of grief.

Greets://
Once again I want to thank The1 for teaching me and Cyrus for doing absolutely nothing on this one, also I want to thank mikecc for being a cool person :) DrDoS for being there for me and Trick for making an ass of himself so i dont have to.

****
Article from MacHacking.net Knowledge Base: http://kb.machacking.net